NUMBER 10.

J. E. ROBINSON FOR STATE SENATOR

What Our Neighbors Think Of The Candidacy Of Our Countyman.

Joe E. Robinson, attorney, farmer, newspaper man, of Lancaster, announces this issue for the democratic nomination for State Senator in this district composed of the counties of Lincoln, Garrard, Boyle and Casey. Born in Lincoln county, and owning several farms in the county, Mr. Robinson is thoroughly identified with Lincoln county people. He is a successful farmer, one of the best lawyers in this section and he ranks high as a newspaper man; the latter business being sort of a hobby with him. Before he was old enough to vote he began to work and talk for the democratic party and since he has grown to manhood he has been very prominent in the party. He served Garrard county as county attorney and his administration was marked with good work. He is executive committee man for this district and whenever and wherever called by his party, he willingly answers. Few men of his age have done more hard work for the party of parties than has Mr. Robinson and few have asked as little of it. He is a strong speaker and his voice has been heard in nearly every county of the State. In fact he is always in the thickest of the fight and he is as effective a speaker as he is a worker. A splendid campaigner, he will shake hands with a great many of the people in this district before the August primary and in his convincing way will give many reasons why a democrat should be sent from this district to Frankfort, and incidentally, why that democrat should be himself. It is highly probable that he will have no opposition for the nomination, but very likely the republicans will name a man for the office. Mr. Robinson is able to meet and beat any republican who shys his castor in the ring, for failure is not in his vocabulary; he has never been beaten and he's going to win this year. Put that in your pipe and smoke it.—Interior Journal.

The Daily Messenger carries in this issue the official announcement of Hon. J. E. Robinson, of Lancaster, for the Democratic nomination for State Senator in this, the 18th, District.

We feel that the candidacy of Mr. Robinson should meet with the unanimous and enthusiastic approval of the Democrats of the District. He is an unusual man, in every way worthy and well qualified to represent this district in the Senate. Mr. Robinson was reared on the farm, and has never gotten away from it, and he is now a practical farmer actively engaged in farming and conversant with the needs of the farmer in legislation. With this qualification, he combines that knowledge of the law, which is absolutely necessary when an attempt is made to change it; much of the failure in law enactment in this State, and much of the bad law in force is the result of an attempt to amend the law by persons who did not know what the law was, with the result that it was made worse instead of better.

The combination of a practical farmer, a successful business man, a capable lawyer and speaker ought, it seems to us, to constitute ideal qualifications for the office of State Senator, and we appeal to Democratic and Republicans alike to help elect Mr. Robinson to the Senate for the good of this district and the state at large.—Danville Messenger.

An unusual opportunity is offered the people of the 18th. Senatorial district to elect to office, in the person of Hon. Joseph E. Robinson, a capable business man, an experienced, practical farmer and a successful lawyer, and we bespeak for Mr. Robinson, who announces as a candidate for State Senator in this issue, the cordial support of all Democrats in the district.

There are times when it would be a good thing for the district and the state to have an every-day, practical farmer in the Senate, there are times when it would be a good thing for the people of the district and the state to have a capable lawyer in the Senate, and there are times when it would be a good thing for the district and state to have a successful business man of affairs in the Senate, and always it is a good thing to have a capable and forceful speaker of intelligence as a representative in the Senate. Mr. Robinson combines in

WORK AND SYSTEM

Required To Rid Farm Of All Weeds.

There is no short cut to weed prevention or extermination, both hard work and system being required, according to E. C. Vaughn, a member of the Botany Department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, who has estimated that there are more than 125 varieties of weeds in Kentucky which should be destroyed. An occasional crusade will give only temporary relief but a systematic campaign lasting through every month and every year will succeed with less expense in the long run.

Bearing in mind the fact that prevention is better than cure, the farmer should be very careful in the purchase of seeds and should make an earnest attempt to get those that are free from noxious weed seeds, even though the cost may be much greater. In case of doubt as to purity, samples should be sent to the Experiment Station for analysis, and judgement should be based, not on the per cent of pure seeds, but on the per cent and character of weed seeds contained in the sample.

Care should be taken to prevent the introduction of objectionable seeds by threshing machines, clover hullers, used grain bags and screenings. All implements and machinery that could possibly carry seeds should be carefully cleaned before moved from one farm to another. Screenings containing weed seeds should be buried if used for feed or burned if useless.

Weeds should not be allowed to ripen on the farm. Some, such as amaranth, have inconspicuous flowers and produce seeds before their presence is suspected. For this reason weeds should be cut as soon as possible after their appearance.

Some weeds may be crowded out by quick-growing, thickly seeded crops especially if the soil is kept in good condition. Most of them may be held in check by a good rotation including one closely cultivated crop every three or four years.

Land should not be permitted to be idle, but some useful crop should be kept growing whenever possible. The task is not ended with harvest, for some weeds mature later in the fall and the seeds, scattered about in various ways, produce weeds the next spring.

It will be found profitable, from the standpoint of weed prevention alone, to keep somesheep. These animals are useful in the advantage of being profitable in other ways.

A Serious And

Deplorable Loss.

Miss Belle Leavell, who lives near Hyattsville, and who is among the champion turkey raisers of the county suffered severe inroads on her flock from some unknown cause last week; something presumably a variant of some description, made way with 69 young turkeys in one night. The loss is a severe one as the young turkeys were about the size of a frying chicken, and as they had passed their most critical stage, it is reasonable to suppose that the bulk of them would have reached the market this fall where they would have netted Miss Leavell a neat sum.

Rev. G. N. Smith of Louisville will fill the pulpit at the Baptist Church next Sunday morning and evening.

LOST: A large size Tameo pin, with four pearls, two pearls missing. Lost Sunday, June 6th, between my home and public square of the square and Brooklin Bridge, via Brena Vista. Reward if returned to me.

his person all of these unusual and splendid qualifications of a State Senator, and this district will have a Senator who is a farmer, a lawyer, a successful business man and a capable and eloquent speaker if he is elected. We think the opportunity to secure the services of this man is a great one for the people of this district, and commend his candidacy to Democrats and Republicans alike.—Kentucky Advocate.

TOBACCO ORGANIZATION

PROGRESSING SATISFACTORILY.

Editorial.

The effort to procure co-operation in marketing among the growers of tobacco is being favorably received by the growers in all parts of the country. It should be no trouble to convince the grower that the present method of selling tobacco wholly deprives him of any opportunity for a voice in fixing the price. All the crop that is produced, whether it be large or small, is dumped upon the market in a few weeks time. This frequently results in embarrassing the purchaser, not only in acquiring sufficient money to handle the crop in so short a period, but makes it difficult in procuring and providing storage space for the crop and at the same time makes it very expensive on the purchaser in preparing the crop in so short a time for storage, such as redrying. Casual thought convinces everybody that the present auction system of disposing of tobacco should be changed because it does not give the producer a chance to get what his article is worth. Agreeing then, that the present system of selling should be changed the grower is asked to consider the plan offered for the co-operative marketing of the tobacco.

We invite the tobacco growers who are readers of the Record to study the plan and to become interested in it. It is our opinion that all who give it a fair consideration will be favorably impressed. The growers are not the only interested parties in this movement, for both business and professional men are dependent largely for success upon the fortunes of the tobacco growers wherever this industry has become a feature in the agricultural districts. The plan, as suggested, includes the holding of tobacco until the purchasers or manufacturers are in need of the raw material for consumption. Another feature is that the organization is not built upon the idea of any profit to any one, except the grower and only growers can become members of the organization. The grower will be paid for his crop upon delivery more than he would probably receive if there was no organization and the net sum realized by holding the product off the market and furnishing as the trade demands, it will be paid to the grower as each grade is finally disposed of. The growers of tobacco should avail themselves of every opportunity to hear the plan discussed until it is fully understood over the tobacco growing districts of the country.

Candidates Galore.

Candidates are as numerous nowadays as the proverbial fiddler in the place where the bad folks go, and beloved voter is having his good right hand shaken so often and fervently that we fear he will grow shy of the office seeker before his services can become useful.

Persistent Builders.

Messrs. James W. Smith and Theo. Currey are each building new residences on Water street. These two progressive young men have done much toward the improvement of Lancaster in the building line, each having erected several nice residences and have as often been tempted by handsome profits to part company with them when completed.

Off To Charity's.

Notwithstanding the dire threats made by the members of the Rockcastle fishing club to expel Saufley Hughes from its membership because of his reputed catch of a wounded whale in Florida, he forms one of a bunch composed of John Farra, Wesley Dickerson and Webb Kelley, who went to Charity's Monday for a weeks fishing.

Livin' High.

Verily this is the season of the year when we can live high in spite of old H. C. E. Many folks have already "had peas," and beans and potatoes are just about ready with corn and tomatoes coming apace. The fruit crop is an utter failure, but the blackberry crop gives wonderful promise, and this taken with the fact that we are having a fairly good honey year, gives us something for which to be thankful.

Silas Shelburne Dies.

Silas Shelburne, pioneer loose leaf tobacco warehouseman, was stricken with apoplexy Friday morning at his warehouse in Lexington and died immediately. In the passing of Mr. Shelburne not only the tobacco interests of the state but of the nation surrendered one of the most outstanding figures. For the past twenty years Mr. Shelburne has been one of the leading figures of the Lexington tobacco market and is one of the men most responsible for its growth. He was a native of Virginia. He came to Lexington in 1914 and built the second warehouse in that city. Although 75 years of age Mr. Shelburne was very active and looked after his warehouses in Lexington and North Carolina as if he were twenty years younger. The body was taken to Washington, N. C., Saturday for burial.

Chautauqua Week.

The dates of the Redpath Chautauqua in Lancaster this year has been fixed for July 6th. to 11th. It promises to be the best ever sent out by this bureau.

W. C. T. U.

June 9th. is Flower Mission. The local Union will observe Saturday at three o'clock at Mrs. J. B. Kinnard's. Please bring all of the flowers you can get.

Oiled Streets.

We are at present in the throes of our annual street oiling, and there is oil, oil everywhere. Loud lamentations are going up from housewives, automobilists and the public in general. However, we must take the bitter with the sweet and the amount of dust we will miss during the remainder of the summer will more than make up for the inconveniences we are now enduring from the oil, so let's grin and bear it.

Miss Frost Honored.

Miss Margaret Frost, former community nurse here, has been selected by the Red Cross as a teacher in Western Reserve University summer school, in Cleveland, O. Miss Frost is assistant supervisor, educational department, Cleveland Chapter department, Cleveland Chapter American Red Cross, during this course. Her duties are teaching the principles and their practical application to the work of the Red Cross nurse instructor and to the public health worker in rural communities. Miss Frost's many friends here will be glad to know that she stands so high with the Red Cross as to be selected for this position.

Why Not A Tobacco Factory?

One of the most feasible possibilities of Lancaster is a tobacco factory. A number of years ago the late Andrew Cunningham manufactured in Lancaster a twist of tobacco which attained an enviable reputation on the market and proved a good seller. Since that time the market for twist tobacco has grown considerably, although the quality of the brands offered are far inferior to the famous old "Cunningham twist." Right here where the best burley in the state is grown, and where there is labor skilled in the manufacture of this article, it seems perfectly feasible that a factory would succeed from its incipency. The outlay to establish a factory of this description would be small and we believe would prove a money maker to someone who would take hold of it.

ARMOUR'S

Is To Wed Simply.

$1,000 a Yard Lace For Wedding Gown Is Dismissed As Absurd.

Chicago.—Lolita Armour, heiress to the millions of J. Ogden Armour, is to have a most democratic wedding June 18th, when she will be married to John J. Mitchell, Jr., heir to the millions of John J. Mitchell, banker.

"Just why some of my friends should have said that I am going to trim my wedding dress with lace is a mystery to me," she explained. "And at $1,000 a yard! I guess I'm old-fashioned. There won't be any lace at all. I'm going to wear a trousseau made up of left-overs when I leave on my honeymoon. I think extravagance, as displayed by some brides, is horrid. My things are going to be very simple, and so's the wedding. We think an elaborate ceremony would be quite foolish. None of us want it. No fuss for me, thank you.

Not To Wear Jewels.

"Moreover, I am not going to wear a single jewel at the wedding. At least, I don't expect to. But, of course, one ought to do everything to please one's husband don't you think? I guess I'll have to ask John about it.

"Oh, yes. You might say that I am going to wear some lace, fashioned from bits of the wedding gown worn by my mother. But it has no intrinsic value; just a little sentiment, that's all.

"We are going travelling and will not carry a car full of trunks. You see we are both connected with the army. Mr. Mitchell is a flyer and we are disciplined to hiking without much baggage.

"When we come home again—ah, that's different," she laughed. "I'm going to start housekeeping and supervise everything. Then I'll buy some nice new clothes."

Was "Incubator Baby."

Some twenty years ago Miss Armour was known as the "incubator baby." The only heir to the many Armours seemed fated to infantile death or chronic invalidism. But trained nurses and special diet carried her to the age of eight. Then Dr. Lorenz, a famous Viennese surgeon, made two trips to the Armour home and the child's hips, dislocated from birth, were straightened.

During the war she went through two women's training camps, sleeping in a tent, cooking, washing and policing the camp. She made a big success in war work and Liberty bond drives.

Chautauqua Coming—Get Ready.

The advance men are heralding the coming of Chautauqua early in July. The streets have been oiled and it is now time to begin cutting weeds, whitewashing and making our premises look as presentable as possible to the many visitors who are with us for this most enjoyable annual event.

By All Means, Let's Have It.

A movement is on foot to organize and place on a sound basis a good base ball team in Lancaster, and we sincerely hope the plans will materialize. And while you are at it boys, put some kind of seats and shelter in the park, so that when people go out there and pay 50 cents to see a game, which by the way is a pretty steep price, they may be comfortable. There are a number of lay "fans" in Lancaster who would attend every game, but are prevented because they cannot go out there and stand throughout the game in the hot sun.

Enjoying A Visit To The Old Home.

Mr. Joseph P. Sandifer, of Fort Thomas, Ky., is enjoying a week's stay in Lancaster. With the exception of one day Mr. Sandifer has not been in Lancaster for thirty-two years. He is connected with the Union Trust & Savings Co., in Cincinnati, but resides in Ft. Thomas. Mr. Sandifer spent his younger days in Lancaster; was originally with the National Bank, but went with the Citizens Bank upon organization of that institution, and remained with it until he left here for Middleboro.

Mr. Sandifer is receiving a warm welcome from his legion of Lancaster and Garrard county friends.

LAST SUMMONS FOR LUKE M'LUKE

Famous Humorist Passes Away After An Operation For Appendicitis.

CINCINNATI, O., June 4th.—James S. Hastings (Luke McLuke,) widely known as a newspaper man and humorist, died at midnight at Cincinnati hospital. He was 53 years of age.

Mr. Hastings was operated upon last Saturday for appendicitis, and his condition was considered favorable until yesterday, when he suffered a relapse. Mr. Hastings had been on the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer for twenty years.

He is survived by a widow and four children.

Mr. Hastings' individual style of humor, his quips at modern foibles, and his quaint philosophical sayings turned out duly in his column of "Hits of Hyplay," have helped to carry the name of "Luke McLuke" into practically every corner of the country.

More recently he had conducted his work through a syndicate arrangement.

Mr. Hastings was born at Lowell, Mass. After engaging in newspaper work in that city he held positions on newspapers in Boston, Philadelphia, and Washington before he became a member of the Enquirer staff two decades ago.

Yantis.

Information was received from a sanitarium in New York recently to the effect that S. F. Yantis, so familiarly known in Paragould as "Frank," is at the point of death and is not expected to live but a few hours. Mrs. Yantis received a message stating that the end was near last night, but this morning another telegram came. However, later in the day a third telegram was received, mentioning another relapse, and judging from the tone of the message, absolutely no hope is held out for his recovery.

Frank left Paragould on the eighteenth of last September enroute to Montreal, Canada, where he had been offered a position with one of the largest Canadian railway systems.

Prior to that time he had been general manager for the Jonesboro, Lake City and Eastern railway, with offices at Jonesboro. With the severance of his connection with that line, he came to Paragould and remained for only a few days, then left for Canada. In St. Louis he experienced a complete breakdown and remained there for some time, receiving medical treatment, then went on to Canada, but after two or three weeks doubled back to New York, where he has been since.

Mr. Yantis' many friends in Paragould sincerely hope that a quick turn for the better will come, and that he will pull through the threatening shadows of the valley just as he pulled out of a great many tight places before. Paragould has never produced a more genial, whole-souled citizen than Frank Yantis. He had his faults and they were many and so has the rest of mankind, but he held a high conception of honor judged from his self-will viewpoint, and he was not the kind of a critic who consigned others to perdition because they failed to agree with him. He was an original, unique character, possessed of a wonderful intellect and a splendid personality, fearless from almost every angle, and a life-long friend to those he chose to mingle with.

A message was received just as the paper was going to press, stating that Mr. Yantis died at 3:30 this afternoon.—Paragould Messenger.

Mr. Yantis was born and raised in Lancaster and was well known here. He was the son of Mrs. Mary Daniels Yantis, and a nephew of Mrs. Theo. Currey, Mrs. Carrie Davidson and Mrs. W. J. Romans, of this city, all of whom have the heart-felt sympathy in their great bereavement.

Chicks On Range Make Best Growth.

In order that growing pullets may have an opportunity for developing normally and reaching maturity at the popular time it is important that they be separated from the remainder of the flock and placed on good range when eight to ten weeks old depending on weather conditions, according to J. K. Smith, field agent in poultry from the College of Agriculture. In being removed from the brooder the young pullets should be weaned away gradually from the heat as changing them from a heated brooder to a colony house with no heat is certain to result in crowding. The range may include the entire farm or be limited to a small area but regardless of size should supply green food and shade for the growing birds. They should also have a plentiful supply of cool, fresh water. Alfalfa or clover range has been found to be the most satisfactory in helping the chicks make a normal growth but if these are not available any green pasture or orchard may be used or such crops as rye and oats sown. A vinegar barrel equipped with a faucet and set on a box provides a convenient method of watering the chicks. A constant supply of water is furnished by opening the faucet in the end of the barrel each morning so that the water drips slowly into the pan below. The rate of drip should be governed by the size of the flock. The faucet should be closed at night. It is essential that plenty of shade be furnished the chicks during the hot summer days and if trees or bushes are not growing on the range, temporary shade should be provided by growing some crop as corn or sunflowers. A crude shed will supply shade in the absence of anything better. As soon as the sex can be determined the pullets and cockerels should be separated. It is usually more profitable to sell all surplus cockerels at this time keeping only those that will be needed for breeding purposes the following fall. Pullets and cockerels should be placed in separate houses, care being taken to see that birds of approximately the same size are placed in the same house. If the chicks are confined in the colony house for one day after being removed from the brooder or the mother hen they will return to the house at night.

WAGING WAR ON "LADY KILLERS"

Nothing of the "Lady Killer" About This Equipment.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. An exhibit of "lady killers," the kind found in two roomy homes was recently put on in different parts of the State of Washington by the Washington State College extension department and the United States Department of Agriculture. Among the "lady killers" are found the washboard, the scrub brush, the water pail, the short handled dustpan, the ax and a number of implements with which many women are obliged to do their work. To offset the "lady killers" was another exhibit of ways and means of lightening work in the home. In this were included "kitchen fixtures" in the form of wagon-like refrigerators, washing machines, pumps for simple water systems, brooms, mops, fruit and vegetable cutters, oil stoves, portable gas makers and hydraulic rams. Several manufacturers showed light and power plants suitable for farm homes at the same exhibit. Small conveniences costing anywhere from 5 to 25 cents were also displayed. Getting more conveniences for doing work into the home is the aim of every home-demonstration agent.

USE GARDEN PAD TO SAVE SKIRTS

Contrivance Makes Transplanting and Weeding by Hand Much Easier.

EXTENSION WORKER ASSISTS

Matting, Burlap, Heavy Canvas or Even an Old Rug or Piece of Carpet Can Be Made Use Of—Directions for Cutting.

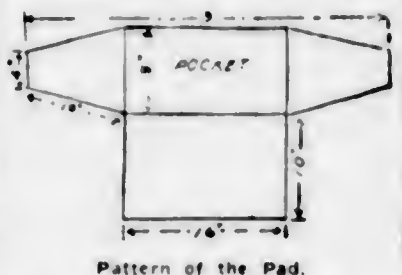

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. "So far as the garden is concerned I've struck," said Mrs. Damon to her caller, as she sat back knitting in her hands, prepared to count. "I'm tired to death of mowing knees and dirt-stained skirts. No more vegetable garden for me, Mrs. Brown, and I don't think I'll plant any annuals in the flower beds either." Mrs. Brown smiled. "But don't you just love the feel and the smell of the freshly turned dirt in your hands when you're sowing or transplanting?" she asked, "how don't you, Mrs. Damon?" "I confess I do," Mrs. Damon admitted. "Even after all my complaints I fancy that when the time of garden ing comes I'll have trouble sticking to my resolution." Suggests Use of Garden Pad. "I'll think that, as all you dislike, really, is the condition under which the work is done, you might use a garden pad," Mrs. Brown suggested. "One of the kind I saw the home-demonstration agent teaching some club girls to make the other day." "Do you suppose she would show me how? Was down deep in my heart I'd like to be poking in the soil in my garden this day, if the frost were out of the ground," Mrs. Damon was smiling. "I am sure she would," Mrs. Brown replied and these were the directions which the extension worker, under the supervision of the State Agricultural essary to cut the pattern double, and place a heavy cardboard between the outside and the lining to hold the shape when finished. Cotton tape is used for fastening the edges together, and for the handles. An oblong piece of black cloth sewed on the under side of the bottom setting, will protect the pad and keep the cushion dry. One-half yard of matting, one yard of denim, one roll of one-inch tape, and one oblong of black cloth will be sufficient to make the pad.

Cut Paper Pattern First. Put a paper pattern by the measurements given in the illustrated pattern. The oblong must be made larger or smaller as desired. When such changes are made, however, the side ends which fold around should be made long or short enough to just meet the back corners of the square. Cut the lining first and pin it to the matting. The two edges should be bound with the cotton tape at once to keep the matting from raveling.

Put a strip 15 by 9 inches for the pocket. Place a one-inch hem at the top and sew the bottom of the pocket along the dotted line on the inside of the front of the frame before the sides are folded around and fastened to the sides of the bottom. Affix a rubber band through the hem to hold the top edge straight across, but do not stretch the rubber. Stretch the sides of the pocket to the inside of the front and the pocket will be finished.

Put an oblong or black cloth for the bottom and sew it securely around the edge of the underside of the set.

Pattern of the Pad.

then fold each side to meet the sides of the bottom, and sew them together.

Fasten the ends of one piece of tape, 10 inches long, to the back corners of the frame, also sew ends of another piece of tape the same length to the lower front corners of the frame, fasten the latter also to the top of the front. Bring these loose loops together and fasten. This handle when not in use, will drop inside the pad.

Make a cushion of the lining to fit flat on the inside of this frame and stuff it with cotton, or cover a thick piece of felt with the same material. This cushion should be fastened to the bottom of the kneeling pad.

It is said that a large number of government positions are vacant in the year there will be no other cause men can not live on the low kind. The fellow who used to live comfortably on $50 a month now finds that sum an aggravation, about enough to feed the mosquitoes in the average home.

A knowledge of the law of health does not come by instinct, says a leading authority. It must be taught. Every child should be taught to desire cleanliness instead of accepting it first to the interests of our own cleanliness. For cleanliness leads to health, and health enriches the power of mind and paves the road to success.

Multi-millionaires are becoming too much of a multiplicity in this country. We will have to use greater discretion in this rapid accumulation of wealth, or there will be no poor men left to do the work.

Mr. Harding says we should look first to the interests of our own country instead of accepting it first to the interests of our own cleanliness. For cleanliness leads to health, and health enriches the power of mind and paves the road to success.

The pad may be made of matting or even an old rug or piece of carpet. Matting lined with brown denim is very suitable material, because this color does not show soil easily. The matting lined with brown denim and bound with red tape makes an attractive color combination. If cloth with out the matting is used it will be necessary to cut the pattern double, and place a heavy cardboard between the outside and the lining to hold the shape when finished. ## ROSEN RYE

Is Most Popular In The State.

Rosen rye is the most popular variety among Kentucky farmers growing this crop, according to investigations conducted by Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist from the College of Agriculture. Farmers in some counties have grown the variety for three years with the result that nine-tenths of the rye now produced there is of the Rosen variety. This particular variety grows taller, has larger heads, larger seed, and gives more grain than any other rye grown, according to farmers who reported on the investigation.

Advantages of Rosen rye as a grazing crop are shown by results obtained by William Fettergill at Easter Day in Carroll county. Mr. Fettergill planted Rosen Rye in the center of a corn field last fall which was planted with native rye around the edges. This spring after the field had been pastured for some time it was found that the cattle had grazed the Rosen rye to the ground while the native rye had hardly been touched.

Are You Up-To-Date?

Do you load it at the muzzle? When you want a shot or two? Do you wind it with a watch-key? Like your father used to do? How'd you like to hop a horse-car? Like you did long years ago? Don't an auto heat an ox-cart? Well, I rather reckon so. Do you argue that an hour-glass Beats a Waltham all to smith? Do you use the same old system Keeping books and countin' cash? Do you trim a goose quill neatly—When you want the ink to flow? Don't you think there's been improvement In the last decade or so? Tell us, are you advertising In the same old foolish way That your grand-dad did before you? And persist, "It doesn't pay?" Think the whole world knows your address?

"Cause it hasn't changed in years! Wouldn't the pathos of such logic Drive a billy goat to tears? Just a card is all you care for? ## Few Simple Precautions Will Stop Stock Losses.

By practicing a few simple precautions livestock shippers can do much to eliminate the enormous losses in stock, especially hogs, which occur during hot weather, according to members of the Animal Husbandry Department of the College of Agriculture. Hogs should be hauled or driven to the shipping station in ample time to allow them to become rested and cool before loading after which they may be loaded into cars that are clean and bedded with sand, clay or earth. The bedding and interior of the car should be thoroughly dampened before the car is loaded. Feeding the animals a heavy feed of grain before they are shipped results in more body heat being generated.

The stock to be shipped should be loaded not more than one hour before the train is to depart and should be loaded slowly and carefully, care being taken to avoid exciting or bruising the animals. Not more than 14,000 pounds of fat hogs should be placed in one car but 16,000 pounds of stock hogs may be placed in a standard 36-foot car during warm weather. Water applied to the bedding in the car at available points will be found helpful in preventing the animals from becoming overheated. Ice should be used on the floor of the car wherever possible. Care should be taken to see that water is not thrown directly on the hogs after they become heated. Instead it should be run on the floor of the car under the hogs.

Stray Roosters Threaten Recent Campaign Success.
Roosters which were not killed, confined or sold during "Rooster Week" which has just ended will do much toward preventing the campaign for infertile summer eggs from being successful, according to members of the poultry department of the College of Agriculture. Farmers who did not eliminate the roosters from the flocks during that week have been asked to do so at once since one or two male birds running with the laying flock can produce many fertile eggs which spoil rapidly during the summer months and are discriminated against on the market.

ONIONS REQUIRE VERY RICH SOIL

Work Into Seed Bed 3 or 4
Inches of Well-Rotted Manure, Say Specialists.

USE HIGH-GRADE FERTILIZER

Plants Grow Rapidly and Should Have Frequent Shallow Stirring of Surface Soil—Plant "Sets" in Rows 15 Inches Apart.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Onions require a mellow, rich soil; in fact, very few gardens are rich enough to grow good onions without some fertilizing. In preparing the soil break it up with a spading fork, working into the top 3 or 4 inches of well-rotted manure, suggest garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Ten pounds of high-grade commercial fertilizer should also be spread over each square rod of ground and well raked into the soil a few days before planting the onion "sets." Poultry and sheep manure are both good fertilizers for onions, but must be used sparingly and well mixed with the soil to prevent burning the onion roots.
Require Frequent Stirring.
Onions grow very quickly and require frequent shallow stirring of the surface soil. The usual method is to plant the "sets" in rows about 15 inches apart and 3 to 5 inches apart in the rows, covering them just so the tops will be below the surface. A narrow steel rake is a good tool for working between the rows at first, but later as the onions attain some size a wheel hoe can be used. For the very first working and for getting between the individual plants in the rows there is nothing better than a short piece of lath with three wire blades driven through it at one end, making what is known as a "scratcher." By and by the onion tops will get so large that they almost fill the spaces between the rows and hand weeding may have to be resorted to in order to keep the crop free from weeds.
Scatter Nitrate of Soda.
About the time the onions begin to enlarge at the base, or to "bottom," as the growers say, it is a good plan to scatter a very little nitrate of soda, not more than two pounds to the square rod, over the soil between the rows and work it in with a hoe or rake. This will stimulate the growth just at the time that the plants most need a little extra food and will usually increase the yield.

A quart of onion "sets" properly planted and given a fair chance will produce about one-half bushel of mature onions.

USES OF BORDEAUX MIXTURE

Best Fungicide to Apply on Vegetables, Grapes, Ornamental Plants and Potatoes.

Bordeaux mixture is our best fungicide for use on vegetables, potatoes, grapes, and ornamental plants. For apples and stone fruits, lime-sulphur replaces bordeaux. On potatoes bordeaux mixture not only protects the potato plant against fungus diseases, but also prevents the burning of the leaves which comes in hot, dry seasons. Sprayed plants outyield the unsprayed plants. For use on potatoes to control the potato beetle, one-half pound of paris green, or two pounds of arsenate of lead may be added to the bordeaux mixture.

POISON BAIT FOR CUTWORMS

Paris Green or Arsenate Mixed With Wheat Bran and Molasses is Specific Remedy.

Poisoned bran bait is the specific remedy for cutworms. The accepted formula for large acreages is wheat bran, 50 pounds; paris green or crude arsenic, two pounds; black strap molasses, two quarts; water, two to four quarts or more as needed. Mix the bran and poison thoroughly in a dry state, then add the diluted molasses, and stir vigorously until thoroughly mixed. Distribute the bran over the infested field broadcast, taking care to sprinkle it sparingly around each hill. Middlings or alfalfa meal may be substituted for bran.

The Small Town And The Fourth Com- mandment.

This may seem like "small town stuff," and the writer may be called a back number and old fogey etc., but if we are to believe the Book, He will not hold him guiltless who breaks his commandments.

In the larger cities for many years it has been customary to have base ball games, picnics and all kinds of outdoor sports, the theater and picture show is open, and very little is thought or said about those who attend, the attractions are taken as a matter of course.

Heretofore these things have been confined to the cities, but of late years the smaller towns, who think it is smart to ape the cities, are adopting these Sunday amusements. Luckily up to the present Lancaster has had no Sunday base ball games, but "they do say" an occasional game of tennis is played on the school campus. We are sure however this is not with the knowledge or consent of the trustees, and as soon as it reaches their ears it will be stopped.

We are sorry to say however that out in the county conditions are not so good and base ball games on Sunday are frequent occurrences. Two of these of late have been attended by hordes, one of which resulted very seriously for one of the participants, and which will doubtless be investigated by the next grand jury.

We are we believe fairly broad minded, and are as much inclined as anyone to place as little restraint as possible upon the pleasures of the young, but we are unalterably against the desecration of the Sabbath; the fourth commandment says "Six days shall thou labor and do all thy work; but the seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God, in it thou shalt not do any work; and we fail to see how anyone who makes any pretensions to Christianity can get around this.

With The Farmer.

Taken upon the whole the outlook for the farmer is about up to the average and his crops are about as well advanced and looking as well as they usually do at this time of year.

Spring grazing was unusually good, but the dry weather in May injured the meadows and the outlook for the hay crop is not very flattering. Oats were also retarded by the dry

May, but with reasonable weather from now on may show marked improvement.

Wheat is looking fairly well, although there is considerable complaint of rust, however there is yet time for it to develop and prove a better crop than prospects now promise.

Barley is beginning to ripen and gives promise of a bounteous crop. Rye also is in good condition and bids fair to turn out well.

Henpe, of which there is a pretty good acreage in the county this year, is looking well and in a thrifty condition, and with reasonable weather bids fair to turn out well.

Tobacco is not as forward as usual, many farmers who have rolling land not yet through setting, waiting on rain. There was some complaint of ravages to the plant beds by an insect resembling the common house fly, but there seems to be no great dearth of plants. The tobacco already set is in thrifty condition and is growing off nicely.

Gardens as a general thing are forward and are in splendid condition, and there is a promise of a bountiful supply of garden truck. Live stock wintered well and is in a thrifty condition.

The farmer who suffered considerably by the sudden slump in prices is rapidly becoming accustomed to the new order of things and within a very short time things will have become normal and the old order of peace, plenty and contentment will become noticeable among our farmers.

BARBEE'S KING, 3898

Barbee's King is a beautiful rich golden chestnut with star and feather, sixteen hands high, weighs 1,200 pounds. I believe he has more style and finish than any young saddle stallion in the South. Has a neck of great length, the best natural tail of any stallion alive, great knee and hock action. Has been awarded fifteen first prizes at Georgetown, Cynthia, Palmouth, Ewing, Paris, Lexington and Louisville Kentucky fairs. Barbee's King won first prize at the Columbia Horse Show for best five-gaited saddle horse, mare or gelding. When you consider size, breeding, with great individuality, no horse has a better right to sire horses for ring and park. Has proven himself a splendid sire of extra fine colts and all of them saddle naturally whether out of saddle bred mare or not. At $15.00. Will make the season of 1921 at my farm, one mile East of Stanford on the Crab Orchard pike.

Will also stand two good mule jacks, which have proven to be great breeders, at $10.00.
At the same place will stand the famous Hubble and Eubanks' Jack, to serve Jennets only, at $25.00 for Jack colts and $12.50 for Jennets. Money to be paid when colts foaled. Will graze and care for mares at $3.00 per month, but not responsible for accidents or escapes. Phone 117.

Seven Die When Airplane Falls.

Five army officers and two civilians were killed instantly when the Eagle, a large ambulance airplane, crashed to the ground near Indian Head, Md., late Sunday afternoon, May 29th. The plane went down during the severe electrical storm that was raging.

The dead, Lieutenant Colonel Archie Miller, a recent graduate of the War College; Lieutenant Stanley M. Ames, of Washington, pilot of the machine; Lieutenant Cleveland W. McDermott, of Syracuse, N. Y., stationed at Langley Field; Lieutenant John M. Pennywell, stationed at Langley Field; Sergeant Richard Blumenkratz, mechanic at Bolling Field; A. G. Bathelder, of Washington, chairman of the executive board, American Automobile Association, and Maurice Connelly, sales manager of an airplane company, major in army service corps and formerly congressman from Iowa. There were no survivors. The Eagle was headed for Washington and was about 50 miles away.

It was flying low when it crumpled and crashed to the ground. The airplane was one of the largest in the army service. It was designed as an airship ambulance, but the stretchers had been removed and chairs had been substituted for the trip.

SPINACH IS ADAPTED FOR EVERY LOCALITY

Plant Requires Rich Soil and Stands Cold Well.

Seed Bed Should Be Spaded and Quantity of Well Rotted Manure Worked In—It Is Best for Use While Young and Tender.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

Well grown spinach is one of the best early spring and late fall greens that can be raised in the garden. Spinach is adapted for growing in practically every locality, requires a rich soil, stands cold as well or better than does lettuce, but does not do well during the hot part of the summer. United States Department of Agriculture garden specialists suggest one or two plantings in the early spring, just as soon as the danger of severe frost is past, and a planting late in the summer for fall use. Throughout the Splendid Patch of Spinach.

South spinach can be planted in October and remain in the open ground all winter.

For growing spinach in the home garden a bed about 5 feet in width and 25 or 30 feet in length should be spaded and a quantity of well rotted manure worked into the top 3 inches of soil. Three pounds of commercial fertilizer should also be scattered over the surface and well worked into the soil. Six or eight ounces of seed will be sufficient for this space. Sow in little drills or furrows running lengthwise of the bed, the rows to be about 6 or 7 inches apart. The seed should be covered 1/2 inch deep and the soil slightly firmed over it. Watering may be necessary if the weather should be extremely dry following the planting of the spinach seed.

Spinach grows quickly and requires very little cultivation, except to loosen the soil a trifle between the rows and keep weeds from getting a start. If the plants are too thick—that is, crowd each other—they can be thinned out and those removed in thinning cooked for greens. The plants left will then have room to grow larger. Spinach is very desirable as an early spring green, as it contains plenty of iron and other mineral matter. It should always be used while young and tender.

QUALITIES OF FARM FENCES

To Give Satisfaction Barrier Must Be Made to Turn All Stock Without Injuring Them.

Farm fences should combine two qualities—service and economy—says the United States Department of Agriculture. To give satisfactory service the fence must be constructed so as to turn all kinds of stock without injuring them. To be economical it must be built as cheaply as is consistent with durability. The fence that is erected at a low initial cost is not necessarily economical, for it may be so short that it will be very expensive in the end.

The cost of maintaining a farm fence is determined by such factors as interest, repairs, and depreciation on the fence itself. Interest on the value of land rendered unusable, and the expense of keeping down weeds. The cost of repairs and the annual depreciation depend largely on the construction. If a fence is made of a cheap grade of material and is cheaply constructed it will need frequent repair and will be short lived. Such a fence will have a high repair and depreciation charge, which in most cases will more than counterbalance the increased investment cost that the erection of a more substantial fence would require. If a fence is made of good materials and is properly built, its repair and depreciation charges should be very low.

The efficiency of a fence depends upon the quality of wire and posts used and upon the manner of construction.

LIME CORRECTS SOUR SOILS

Application Will Prove Beneficial to Small Garden Plot—Binds Loose, Sandy Loams.

An application of about 50 pounds of hydrated or air-slaked lime to a garden plot 30 by 60 feet in size will often prove beneficial. Lime has the effect of loosening and pulverizing any heavy clay soil and of binding loose, sandy soil. Lime also corrects sourness in the soil, which is often due to lack of drainage, but in a case of this kind drainage should be secured.

Wanted—More Speed.

In the annual automobile races at Indianapolis the cars trotted along at nearly a hundred miles an hour.

Speed? Very poor. A hundred miles an hour doesn't get you far in these days of lightning activity.

The automobile served its purpose when it superseded the horse, just as the truck did with the mule.

But no one wants to trot when he can gallop, or gallop when he can run, or run when he can go like a streak of blue blazes.

The automobile is confined to roads, and it wheezes and develops heavy heart action on bad hills or in mud holes.

It has to wind and turn and twist and cover a lot of useless space in order to get anywhere, and that consumes time—too much time.

We must have something better and more rapid—something that can dart hither and thither or cut across country as the crow flies.

Flying machines? Too cumbersome, and a bad wind is apt to topple them over.

We must produce a substance that will control gravitation, a substance that will enable us to ascend or descend at will, or remain stationary between earth and sky.

Then for speed we must find a means of creating a vacuum in front of us, or to the rear, or in any direction we may desire to go, merely by the touching of a button and the operation of a control lever.

Every one knows that a vacuum creates a tremendous suction power, and, according to its force, irresistibly draws everything within its reach.

Speed? With vacuum as its motive force there is no limit to its possibilities, and there are no hills or valleys or streams or mud in the air to interfere.

Can't be done, you say?

It can, and it will be done. There is no such thing as can't. Skeptics have been mumbling "can't" since the beginning of the human race, and yet year after year they continue to accomplish the impossible and put "can't" to shame.

The horse was good, and the automobile is better, but the apparatus of the air will be the invention of the future.

It's the one for us.

Getting Back To Truth.

Admiral Sims, commander of the American over-seas navy during the war, says the British are prone to give the American navy too much credit for the part it played in the world conflict.

The admiral speaks to the point, but he states a fact that is well known upon this continent. He might have included the army with the navy.

It is to be regretted that periodically some people in this country make a lot of noise to the effect that "America won the war," and our British and French friends are too courteous and generous to call the bluff.

America entered the war at a time when victory was tottering in the balance. It was only a question of a short time when one side or the other would be compelled to capitulate, for both were at the point of physical and financial exhaustion.

The arrival of two million American troops, fresh and enthusiastic, was the act that tipped the scales in favor of the allies and caused the Teutons to sue for peace.

The Americans fought very bravely and splendidly for the short time they were in action, and there was a dash and spirit to their fighting which won the praise of the world.

But they were no braver, no more patriotic, no more dashing or enduring than the magnificent French and British troops who fought at their side.

The war is ended. Let us forget, recuperate, and reconstruct.

On May 30th, a hundred million people bowed their heads in tribute to the heroes who have fallen in our American wars.

It is custom—the sorrowful gratitude of a nation.

On July 4th, we will not sorrow. We will jubilate over the glorious act of our forefathers, who made this country free.

That, too, is custom—a custom born of an excess of joy.

No matter how poignant our grief may be today, there is always a measure of joy for the morrow.

It is the destiny of life that joy must be accompanied by sorrow, and sorrow must give way to joy. Never are we permitted to know one to the exclusion of the other.

We are in this life but a little while, each one as but a grain of sand on the glistening beach.

The flowing tides of life bring us into being—we tarry a little while—and the outward rush sweeps us into eternity.

The sands of life are as those of the beach—ever shifting. They come, they linger, and they go, but never is the movement limited to one direction.

There is joy over our advent today, and sorrow over our departure tomorrow.

Joy and sorrow, hand in hand.

Life is nothing else.

Statistics recently made public show that there are sixty-seven men in the United States with an annual income of more than a million dollars.

It is too much. They can not possibly use it, and they are not likely to give away any considerable amount of it. That the government does not take in taxation simply adds more millions to their pile, thereby reducing the amount in circulation among the less fortunate.

On general principles a man has a right to all of the money he can honestly earn, but there should be a limit beyond which no man can go.

If the government would set a reasonable sum as the limit to the size of fortunes and their incomes, and take possession of everything beyond that limit, there would be an end to the accumulation of the wealth of the country in the hands of a few to the detriment of the many.

The principal prop of bolshevism would be knocked from under its feet, and justice, right and harmony would be more in evidence than the growing unrest that is now so prevalent.

We are approaching perilously near to a state of financial feudalism, and feudalism is the enemy of a republican form of government.

The Piped Piper would be a welcome guest in Lancaster; everyone is complaining of the ravages of the rats.

The blackberry crop bids fair to be a good one. Now if sugar does not go skyward, we can at least have plenty of blackberry jam.

JUDGE STAPP

Comes Back At Democratic Committee.

EDITOR CENTRAL RECORD.

Dear Sir:—

In last week's issue of your paper in the double header announcement of the democratic candidates, the spokesman for the democratic committee and some of the candidates, made a few statements that I feel it my duty to correct, provided you will allow me space in your paper to do so.

Like a drowning man grasping at straws, the fact that these men purely for the sake of political expediency, knowingly and wilfully misrepresent a man who is not even a candidate for office, is to say the least, manifestly an unjust act.

The implied and misleading assertion that I had appointed my son road engineer is absolutely false as I would not think of permitting him to hold this office while I am County Judge.

Last fall when the County Road Engineer tendered his resignation, and before his term of office expired, I began diligent search for the most competent man I could find to fill the place. Looking only to the interest of the county, and without offering the place to any of my personal or political friends, I furnished my own ear and myself bearing all expenses drove more than two hundred miles endeavoring to secure the highest type of road engineer that we were able to employ, preferring a man of experience who had made good on the job. In the end I was absolutely unable to find a man of that calibre with the proper recommendation, for anything like the salary we were able to pay. Mr. Boggs, our state highway engineer, Judge Kreiger, County Judge, of Jefferson county, and others that I could mention will bear me out in this assertion. Considerably later on I learned that Mr. R. D. McMurtry, of this county, would accept the position, and knowing him to be a man of experience in this line of work, and believing him to be thoroughly competent, I appointed him to fill the place. Mr. McMurtry accepted, qualified, and moved to town agreeing to devote his entire time to the work, but unfortunately the man to whom he had rented his farm vacated the place and Mr. McMurtry was obliged to resign and return to look after his own business. By that time it was so late, that after carefully considering the situation, and realizing that owing to the State Aid Contract of Richmond road taking the greater part of this year's road fund, and after consulting with the other members of the Court, I determined to sacrifice my time, and with what help and advice the other members of the Court, might give me, and also with the aid of a foreman, to supervise the work myself free of charge, and save the county the salary of an engineer for the remainder of this year.

My son, Irvine Stapp, had been working with the hands and directing the work with my supervision while we were without an engineer, so I allowed him to continue in that capacity. He only worked by the day like the other hands, and like the others if he loses as much as one hour's time it is counted off his day's work. Until a month ago he received less than two other hands, and now since his experience has made him worth more he only draws the same per day as Harve Robinson, our most worthy colored mechanic. Every night I go over the whole situation with him planning any changes in the next day's work, while as often as possible, I drive my own car and look after the manner in which the work is progressing.

If these gentlemen call this graft, or "family grant" or "three in one" they are welcome to do so, but I am willing to leave it to the public after they know the facts in the case whether or not there is anything dishonorable in this kind of a personal sacrifice both of my time and money done solely for the interest of Garrard county.

I am sincerely glad that the question of my administration has been brought up, for while I am seeking no controversy with anyone, it is most gratifying to me to have the opportunity in the near future of giving to the public all the facts in the case, showing why we did not accept State Aid one year, and show to them the only reason we could afford to use it since, when by so doing under war times contract prices, it has cut the road fund of the county for use on other roads to almost nothing. Will also show how greatly the county's indebtedness has been reduced even during these trying four years, the tremendous value of the modern road building equipment we have acquired, how this year we will turn over to the State five miles of very costly road on which Garrard county will never have to spend another cent, how by the use of the road, the machinery we now possess, and because of the sound financial condition in which this administration will leave the county, no matter who may be elected, seventeen miles more of road may next year be resurfaced and turned over to the State to maintain. Will also show the great improvement that has been made in the management and condition of the County Farm, that is no longer used as a political grant, but has been put on a business basis, that while the revenue of same has been greatly increased the farm has been built up in many ways, chiefly by the sowing of more clover in four years than had been raised on this place in the past twenty.

Whether or not politics has played any part in the road work, or in the business affairs of the county in any way, or whether or not I have not always conscientiously looked after the County's interest to the best of my ability, and in a fairly competent manner I leave to the two democratic members of our Fiscal Court to say, for while I know both of them will support and work for their party ticket, I have learned to know them as honorable men, who will not knowingly misrepresent a man because of political prejudice.

As space forbids me saying more at this time I am very truly yours,
FOREST STAPP,
County Judge.

Over in England some of them are feeling justifiably cocky because they beat the Americans at playing golf.

Good enough! We are glad they have found something at which they can beat Americans, even if it is nothing more exciting than golf.

It would never do for us to excel our English cousins in everything. It would be ungenerous of us, and very disconcerting to them.

Some day we may tire of doing the useful things of life—of progressing in the sciences, and in industry, and in agriculture, and education, and in accumulating the wealth of the world.

We may even cease our steady grind of work and production, and decide that it is time to enjoy the glories of the present and anticipate those of the future.

Then, perhaps, we may learn to play golf—the pastime of affluence and dignity.

Carter-Broadbuss.

Earl Broadbuss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cronley Broadbuss, of this city, took snap judgment on his friends last week and was married to Miss Elizabeth Carter, of Stanford. Earl is one of the popular assistants of his father in the county clerk's office and has a world of friends in this city who will congratulate him upon his return to his home town. The Interior Journal has the following to say of the marriage:

Stanford people were treated to a surprise Thursday morning when handsome engraved announcements were received telling of the marriage in Louisville Wednesday of Miss Elizabeth L. Carter, of this city, and Mr. Earl Broadbuss, of Lancaster.

While Mr. Broadbuss had been visiting Miss Carter for a year or more, the young lady kept her secret so well guarded that even her most intimate friends knew not of her intentions. They were married at the Highland Church of Christ and Mr. E. L. Jorgenson performed the ceremony at 4:30 Wednesday afternoon. They left at once for Chicago, where they will make a visit to the groom's brother, Mr. O'Neil Broadbuss, after which they will make their home at Lancaster. The bride wore a becoming coat suit of blue, with hat and slippers to match, and carried a corsage of sweet peas and roses. She is the bright and pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Carter, of this city, and is a charming young woman. She taught the past year in the Stanford Graded and High School and proved herself a most successful teacher. Mr. Broadbuss comes of a prominent Garrard county family and is deputy county clerk of his home county. Many of our people have met him and all speak in the highest terms of him. The Interior Journal scribe hasn't the pleasure of his acquaintance, but he has known his bride since she was a child and he knows no finer young character. Mr. Broadbuss has shown excellent judgment in the selection of a helpmeet and that they both will always be as happy as they now are is the wish and prayer of their many friends here and everywhere.

Bremerton's Human Story
By FREDERICK CLARKE.

(Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Bremerton looked up in his seat, looked out of the window of the West-bound Limited.

"The train slowed, drew into the station, waited a few moments, and then puffed out again. A man came into the carriage and stopped at Bremerton's side.

"Excuse me, sir, but are you John Bremerton?" asked the other.

"Well?" Bremerton demanded, very curiously.

"I was sure that I was on your track. I knew I had recognized you. I want the inside story of the failure of the Cornucopia bank. I am a representative of the Iowa Free-Press.

"You see, sir," the reporter continued, "of course we have all the details of the failure. I want a real human story."

"A real human story!" repeated Bremerton mechanically, and smiled a little bitterly at the irony of events which had left his life, except for his widowed experience, just where it had been when he had left Framington, a penniless country boy, 15 years before.

And his first sweetheart—Lizzie Gray! He had written every day for a month after a year his letters ceased. After two years he had stopped thinking of her. He had heard not long afterward, that she was married.

"Framington! Change here for Des Moines!" shouted the conductor, and Bremerton started up hastily and seized his suit case. He had wanted to see the old town again.

Standing upon the platform he found the reporter at his elbow. He had entirely forgotten him.

"I'm afraid there's a wait of two hours for the Des Moines train," he said. "We just missed the connection. Now, Mr. Bremerton, won't you please help me with this story? It will mean a great deal to me, sir."

Bremerton was a man of quick decisions. He pulled out his watch.

"Three o'clock," he said, glancing at the dial. "I'll be back at four, and I'll give you that story."

He strode out of the station. Except that a few new buildings had sprung up it was astonishing how little the town had changed during the 15 years of his absence. And at the end of the lane was the Grays' cottage. There was the rustic stile where Lizzie and he had met those 15 years ago.

A woman was walking up the lane. She had turned in from below, just where the Gray cottage abutted on the pike. She would see him when she came out of the bend a few feet from the stile. Bremerton remembered how his heart had hammered that morning he had first kissed her. It was here, and Lizzie had walked just as she walked now, unconscious that he waited there. He had wanted to run away, as he wanted to run now. And she had looked up suddenly and seen him just as she looked up now.

And both had trembled, just as both were trembling now.

And he had kissed her, just as he kissed her now.

She had hardly changed except that her figure had grown mature and her face more thoughtful, grayer.

"You are not married, then?" he stammered.

She looked at him coldly, the flush of shame slowly fading out of her cheeks.

"How can you ask me that, John?" she said.

"But I heard—I heard—"

"That's why you ceased to write?" "No," he answered. "I ceased to write before I was told. But still, I am sure that if I had not heard as I should some day have come back."

"To redeem your pledge, John? Well, I release you from it. So let your conscience rest. My school occupies all my life and is my whole interest. While you—you are, or were, a very busy man and a very famous one."

"Then you have heard?" he asked.

"Of course I've heard of you, John Bremerton," she answered. "I—we have all followed your career with the greatest interest," she continued, coloring faintly. "You know we are all proud of you in Framington."

"Oh, if only I had never gone!" he cried. "Lizzie, I've come back to stay—with you."

Rural Woman To Have Own Clubs.

Rural women of Kentucky are to have their clubs the same as their sisters in the city if plans being made by the Home Economics Department of the College of Agriculture to organize clubs in all counties having home demonstration agents, are carried out.

Clubs have already been organized in Calloway, Ballard, Henderson and Muhlenburg counties and plans are going rapidly forward for the organization of similar groups in other counties, according to Miss Mary Miller, field agent in foods from the college.

Calloway county at the present leads the other three in the number of women enrolled in rural clubs, 111 women having enrolled in that county.

The clubs have been organized in various communities, the number of members varying from 15 to 50 in different communities.

The subjects which the women study are closely related to the problems of the home, according to Miss Miller, and include such things as the care and feeding of children, home sanitation, installment of water systems, sewage disposal, home care of the sick and study of kitchen efficiency.

Under the last subject the women study the selection and arrangement of kitchen equipment as a means of saving steps while performing their duties. A number of other subjects of special interest to rural women are included among those studied by the club members.

Meetings are held in the homes of various members and programs arranged which include talks, demonstrations and music. Workers from the Home Economics Department of the College of Agriculture and local home demonstration agents co-operate with the women in carrying out the program of the meeting.

Ever Get Bilious? Try This

Take NR at once. Get digestive and eliminative organs working in harmony and relief is immediate. Never causes griping.

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Feel Right

When your liver goes on strike and you feel a sick headache and bilious spell coming on, instead of prodding your liver with dangerous cathartics and washing your bowels with strong, irritating purgatives, get out your box of mild, gentle-acting NR Tablets and take one right off.

Relief will come just as quickly and with it genuine, lasting benefit. There will be no griping, gnawing pains or doubling stomach ache. Nature's Remedy (NR) Tablets work promptly and thoroughly, but the action is gentle, mild and soothing.

Relief comes through the action of Nature's Remedy on not only the liver, but on the whole digestive and eliminative system—the stomach, the bowels and even on the kidneys. Stored up accumulations of waste and body poisons that have been clogging the system are completely cleared out, the over-worked stomachs strengthened and the interrupted work of digestion and assimilation is resumed. The inactive liver goes to work with new vigor, the bowels are unburdened, the headachy lones, sick, griped and constipated feel down-a-hole feeling disappears, energy, "zip" and appetite return and you feel yourself entirely, completely relieved.

There is no better proof of the great value of Nature's Remedy (NR) Tablets and take the first tablet tonight. If your constipation is stubborn or persistent, continue to take one each night for a week or so. Then note how you feel. Your bowels will be as regular as clock work, and you'll find yourself in better shape physically, mentally, every way than you've been in many a day. After that you need not take medicine every day. An occasional NR Tablet to keep your system in good condition will be sufficient, and you can always feel your best. Remember it is easier and cheaper to keep well than to get well. Just try it.

Nature's Remedy (NR) Tablets are sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

MORE SUNSHINE Predicted For Earth As Result Of Auroras

Silver Oliver Lodge Declares Recent Solar Eruptions May Have Reduced Dust In Atmosphere

AID TO VEGETATION IS SEEN.

London. Recent solar eruption which caused brilliant auroras and disorganized cable and telegraph service throughout the world may result in the earth receiving an increased quota of sunshine during the remainder of the year, says Sir Oliver Lodge, the noted scientist.

He declares it is probable the monsoon will be strengthened and that in consequence the Indian harvest will be improved. He even ventures the opinion that the electrified particles thrown off by the sun during the disturbance may assist in the development of vegetation and reduce the amount of dust held suspended in the atmosphere.

Sir Oliver says the magnetic disturbances that attended the solar eruption were due to a torrent of electrified particles which constituted a gigantic electric current. This opinion is also held by Camille Flammarion, the veteran French astronomer, who has expressed surprise at a storm of such unusual violence occurring at this time. M. Flammarion has pointed out that the sun is now at a period of diminishing activity, the eruptions on the surface of the luminary recurring at intervals of eleven years. Sir Frank Dyson, the astronomer royal, declares the disturbances caused by the sun spots were the worst ever experienced in England.

Dr. E. W. Maunder, founder of the British Astronomical Association, who has made a study of sun spots and of terrestrial disturbances which might be contributed to them, definitely holds that streams of electric particles thrown out into space from the vast whirling cavity popularly known as a sun spot cause magnetic storms upon encountering the earth's atmosphere. Dr. Maunder has reached no decision as to the effect of these particles upon the weather, but he agrees the subject is as yet to be thoroughly explored.

American Legion News

"We have come to the time when we should begin to legislate for the people of this country," said Senator Frank R. Willis of Ohio in the United States Senate.

"When measures are proposed for legislative sanction, immediately the consideration that is suggested is, what will some foreign nation or some alien think about it? We have organizations of the friends of various foreign countries; let us have an organization of the friends of our own country for a while and see how that will work."

The sentiment expressed by Senator Willis is praised by E. W. Galbraith, Jr., National Commander of the American Legion, who wrote to Senator Willis as follows:

"It seems to me that you have hit the nail squarely on the head and I desire to commend you for the straightforward statement. I hope that you may follow it up in the Senate while the American Legion, joining hands with the other loyal Americans, may demonstrate to the world that we are an 'organization of the friends of our own country.'"

Warrant for the arrest of Roger Baldwin, founder of the American Civil Liberties Union, has been sworn out by Major Milton D. Campbell, acting for the American Legion in Cincinnati, O., on a charge that Baldwin violated a state law in "openly advocating revolution." Baldwin spoke in Cincinnati in behalf of liberation of the "political prisoners" of the war and is quoted as saying that he preferred "resistance by arms" to "no resistance at all." During the war, Baldwin served a jail sentence as a result of his seditious activities.

Among the 1,600 resolutions demanding immediate aid for disabled veterans and urging the passage of the American Legion's relief program by Congress were those passed unanimously by the student body and faculty of two Arkansas colleges. With the resolutions of two institutions, Central College and State Normal, were similar documents signed by the Commercial Club, Rotary Club, B. P. O. E., a literary club and the local post of the American Legion.

Ex-Sergeant Stanford, of the 18th Field Artillery, A. E. F., gained some knowledge of fires and gas while in France. When a house caught fire in Glen Rock, Pa., recently, the sergeant brought out his gas mask, plunged into the smoke-filled residence and extinguished the fire. The only casualty came when the veteran who is commander of his post of the American Legion, barked his nose—the gas mask was not small.

A fire which threatened to wipe out the town of Alpine, Tex., was checked when the Big Bend post of the American Legion turned out in force to fight the conflagration. Then the Legionnaires offered their service to the mayor in patrolling the devastated area. The offer was accepted on the spot and for twenty-four hours the Legion men walked posts in the familiar military manner.

The melting pot works overtime in the little town of Frontenac, Kan. In a population of less than 2,000, twenty-two nationalities are abiding in peace. All of them are represented in the local post of the American Legion and in its unit of the Women's Auxiliary. More than ninety per cent of the Legionnaires are members of the United Mine Workers, employed in the coal mines near Pittsburg, Kan.

When it was proposed in Berlin that the famous Hindenburg wooden statue, into which the former kaiser drove a gold nail and the common German iron ones, should be sold at public auction, an American appeared on the scene. He offered 30,000 marks for the figure. Picked as to his reason for buying the statue of the Hoche general, the American declared that he proposes to bring it to America and let Americans drive nails in it again at twenty-five cents a nail. Half the proceeds would go to the American Legion and the other half to the Red Cross.

A house to house canvass of the entire city of Chicago has been undertaken by posts of the American Legion in seeking out veterans who have been successful in adjustment of compensation claims with the Government. A recent membership campaign in Illinois netted a gain of 10,000 members for the first four months of 1921 over the corresponding period of last year.

"Jefferson Post Handicap" was the feature race on Derby Day at the famous Churchill Downs race course at Louisville, Ky. The race was named in honor of the Jefferson Post of the American Legion.

Twenty new posts of the American Legion and sixty-nine units of the Women's Auxiliary were formed during the week ended May 28th.
